

Water flowmeter maintenance is critical to having a credible water use record to protect your water right. Recent regulation changes added a requirement for a landowner to log when they read their meter during the year or irrigation season. We do not need anything complicated. How the information is logged is up to the owner. DWR will be satisfied with a paper record, spreadsheet, or cell phone picture that contains the date, the meter totalizer reading and pump rate.